Ben was an excellent partner to be paired with. Even in the times when he was having some issues with getting his stuff to work, he was still able to contribute to the project. By taking some of the stuff that he was able to add in before problems occurred, I was able to use that to make the code run as it was supposed to on the output. By the end of class time, we didn't have the project fully completed; however, Ben took the time outside of class to get it all going and completed it. I can't express my appreciation enough for that, as at the time of writing this, things are busy.
